FOOT BALL IS REACHING POINT NEAR STANDARD

Lack of Changes in Rules Causes Much General Improvement in Game.

BY H. C. BYRD.

The foot ball schedules of teams in this section are much heavier now than several years ago. With each year the southern colleges and universities have been laboring to build up their athletic systems, particularly in foot ball, and that they have succeeded is shown by the changes in the number and kind of contests they are playing.

Five years ago the followers of foot ball at Virginia would not have thought ners, each rolling for more than 100 of taking on games with Harvard and in 1915 the Orange and Blue met those teams and whipped all but Harvard, and even Harvard could not cross its goal line. North Carolina University, besides meeting Virginia, Georgia and Vanderbilt, has this year scheduled battles with Princeton and Harvard Washington and Lee, North Carolina A and M. and Georgia also are expanding their lists and each is endeavoring every year to add one or more big elevens. Georgetown has opened itself for games with any of the big universities. The Blue and Gray bars none and every fall endeavors to find for itself a place on the schedule of at least one of the big universities and would were not somewhat averse to list

Metzler, the new coach at Central impression among his players and the alumni. One man said yesterday that Metzler was the 'best fellow I have ever known, and we are all exceedingly pleased that he is in charge." That seems to be the prevailing sentiment, and if first impressions hold, as seems likely fin this case, Central is indeed lucky that it obtained the services of such a man as Metzler. such a man as Metzler.

Foot ball seems to be reaching a point close to standardization. For the last four years there have been no radical changes in the rules, and this season only changes in the rules, and this season only the most minor alterations were made. It used to be that gridiron coaches were compelled to spend the early part of the year experimenting with what might or might not be good under the existing conditions for that year. Now, things are different and he knows that plays may be worked out and a plan of campaign mapped out that will not have to be changed because of some new construction of the code under which some of his plays might be construed as illegal. As a result of this apparent approach to standardization, foot ball followers are getting better grades of the game than in previous years, and to this may be aftributed much of the general improvement noted in the game.

Rice and McBride to Play in Today's Game at Cleveland. Shaw May Pitch.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, September 21. "I am going to put my best team ir the field against Cleveland today, the combination I expect to use agains Detroit. Jim Shaw will start if he warms up satisfactorily. If he does not I'll work Johnson," said Griff this morning.

Boston's victory over Detroit yester day has just about settled the pennant race, and while "the Old Fox intends to play his strongest team in the De troit series, which starts tomorrow, he feels that he can win the majority of games even if Johnson twirls today and therefore will be available for only a start against the Tigers.

As a shortstop Ray Morgan will never do. Morgan kicked away yesterday's game and helped the Indians pile up runs against Gallia Tuesday.

"I am convinced that Morgan's position is second base, yet I cannot play him there at present because Eddie Foster is doing fine work. Morgan is a great ball player in the spring, and had he not been injured and forced to lay off for a month this summer I would never have had to shift Foster over to second. Every time Morgan lays off he really, as Smith was turned back.

Either Gould or "Pop Boy" Smith, recently obtained from the New Orleans club, will pitch against the Nationals. "Pop Boy" Smith was given a trial with the Chicago White Sox several years ago, but was turned back. Howard Shanks had everybody crossed up in the eighth, when he slammed a single to right field, sending Smith all the way to third base. Shanks followed this up by stealing second, but Judge's fly to Graney killed off the rally, as Smith was turned back at the plate. lays off he appears to slow up."

Griffith is delighted with the fine Griffith is delighted with the fine showing of Pitcher Claude Thomas and predicts that Thomas will be one of all standbys next year. According to the Nationals' boss, Thomas has great control and a change of pace, besides a spit ball, and he can put the ball anywhere he has to at any time.

"Why, in St. Louis, when Thomas pitched that two-hit game, he had the tieing run on second base, with Jimmy Austin up. The count was two and two, and Thomas sent up a slow ball, which caught Austin flatfooted, and he swung and has just started to whale the ball as I hoped he would.
